

About me

Throughout my life, and thanks to my curiosity and creativity, I have been able to learn about many subjects, most of them in a self-taught way.

A few years ago I tested my entrepreneurial spirit by seeking to help the talents of others. After 6 years, the experience has been quite satisfactory for me, creating or participating in the creation of various entities and non-profit organizations, and also in various business ideas, some of them more successful than others.

What I have no doubt about is that it has helped me to learn even more things, as varied as possible: from administration, coordination, documentation, accounting and budgeting, management and procedures with the public administration, maintenance and reforms, dealing with clients and suppliers... and a long etcetera.

I am very proud of my skills which have been greatly valued thanks to my ability to adapt and solve problems.

For the last couple of years I have been focused on the energy transition and the ecological footprint, being electric mobility and the zero waste philosophy the main topics of my interest.

Now I am looking for a challenge to put my experience and enthusiasm on a new project where I could show my talent and everything that I have learnt the last years.
